CONGRESSMAN O'KONSKI INTERVIEWED

CPYRGHT

DOUGLAS EDWARDS: "The controversy over the CIA subsidizing some members of the National Student Association continues to boil on Capitol Hill. But there's a little opposition from Congress about it. And at least one Congressman, Alvin O'Konski of Wisconsin, favors their being draft deferred."

O'KONSKI: "It's all right for the CIA to reach out sometimes and get college students and to pay them, and we must take into account that some of these assignments that we give to these college students -- these young folks are actually risking their lives on some of these assignments that they perform. So a draft deferment in that particular case, I think, would be justifiable."
